REGISTRATION ACT HELD INVALID BY APPELLATE COURT

Injunction Granted by Court of Appeals Throwing General Registration Into the Discard—Thousands of Dollars Lost to Counties.

Frankfort, Ky., June 29.—The general registration act of 1922, requiring all voters to register in ever precinct in the state the second Monday and Tuesday in July, was held unconstitutional by Chief Justice Rollin Hurt of the Court of Appeals this afternoon, granting an injunction to J. M. Perkins, prominent Republican of Frankfort, to restrain the Franklin County Board of Election Commissioners from holding the registration. The suit was backed by the Republican state organization.

All the judges of the Court of Appeals considered the case with the Chief Justice, and all concurred in the conclusion, excepting Judge William Rogers Clay of this district, who filed a dissenting opinion.

The act was held unconstitutional because it does not provide for a special registration outside cities for special elections or for a special registration of public officers, militiamen, jurors and others, whose duties prevent them from registering on the regular registration day.

This decision disposes of the general registration, but an interesting aftermath of the suit involves the payment of about $90,000 for the registration books, sent to the county clerks. The Standard Printing Company, Bradley-Gilbert Company and C. T. Dearing Company of Louisville, bound an equal number of the books, about 15,000 in all. The work was done under the supervision of the Board of Registration Commissioners, created by the act, composed of Secretary of State Fred A. Vaughan, and the chairmen of the Democratic and Republican State Committees. They were, of course, required to act in time to get the books to the County Clerks before the registration. The law provided that the counties shall pay for their own books, and the clerks notified the printers of the numbers they needed. It is apprehended that counties may resist payment, and it is doubted whether the state may reimburse the printers without legislative sanction.

In consequence of this alteration further litigation may follow the action of the court in the injunction case today.

The General Registration Act was put through the General Assembly as a party measure and was vetoed by Governor Morrow. It was then passed over his veto. The outcome of the suit, naturally has given great satisfaction to the Republicans.

REV. RILEY WILL SUBSTITUTE FOR COL. GEO. W. BAIN

Aged Orator Unable to Fill Ruggles Engagement on Account of Illness—Live-Wire Englishman to Speak Instead.

Once more the Rev. Fred Riley the popular little English preacher of Abordene has been called upon and has accepted the invitation to fill the place of a big man on a big occasion. Werd was received Thursday of the illness of Col. Geo. W. Bain who was to have spoken at Ruggles Camp grounds July Fourth. While his illness is not severe yet because of his advanced age, being 82, his family thought it best for him not to chance the trip here from Lexington and the exertion of making a big speech. Of course this came as a great shock to the Old Settlers. All were looking forward with joy at the privilege of hearing Col. Bain once more. As the Fourth is so near something had to be done immediately. A hasty call was sent to Rev. Riley who is in Delaware, Ohio, this week, to come to the relief of the situation. A telegram was received from him Thursday stating he would be pleased to address the Old Settlers on the Fourth. This news brought great joy. Rev. Riley so pleased the Mason County Sunday School Convention when he filled the place of Supt. Colvin that it goes without saying that he will make good at Ruggles. Rev. Riley's experiences as a British soldier during the World War are ever interesting. This will be his first Fourth of July in America and it will no doubt be interesting to hear his impressions of our country after having lived here but ten months. Those who intended going to Ruggles to hear Col. Bain will not be disappointed when they hear Riley. Everyone who has heard him will make the same testimony.

Col. W. H. Thomas, acting president of the Old Settlers, stated Thursday that everything was in readiness for the big day. He says the camp grounds are very pretty this year. The Tollesboro band is keyed up for their very heat. Prof. Helton, the other speaker for the day, is all ready for his part. Those who spend the Fourth at Ruggles will be the ones who will truly enjoy the Nation's birthday in the true patriotic way.

There will be preaching at the tent Friday afternoon by Mr. Harvey Willard.

The revival will close Sunday evening, so don't miss any of the services.

Friday night a Bible will be given to the oldest man or woman present. Let all the older folks come.

MISS BEECHWOOD IN MERZ BROTHERS' WINDOW.

Merz Brothers' West Second street window is creating considerable comments and compliments. Miss Beechwood, clad in her bathing togs, sits on the sandy beach along the water shore. The window is most attractive and timely. It not only displays a popular store's splendid line of bathing suits but nearby hanging on the line is the young lady's entire outfit selected for the best enjoyment of the park from Merz Brother's big stock.

OVER 600 POUNDS OF FISH.

The Manchester Signal says:

Several hundred people gathered at the west end of the old fair ground now owned by Boone Reed to watch Mr. Reed and his assistants fish in over three hundred pounds of fish from the fair ground pond. About the same amount was taken on Monday. Through the clogging of the outlet drain pipe the pond overflowed the road, necessitating the draining of it. He will repair the drain and let it fill.

ABERDEEN BOY IS CARTOONIST.

This week's issue of the Manchester Signal gives a cartoon drawn by Luman M. Winter, fourteen-year-old son of William Winter of Abordene, which shows wonderful ability at drawing. This young man is a constant worker, putting in all his spare time at experiments of all sorts. He is operating a radio outfit which he made himself and is enabled to hear all of the big concerts.

Hon. William Jennings Bryan passed through the city Friday en route to Augusta where he speaks on the chautauqua program Friday. Mr. Bryan, the great Commoner, stopped off in Maysville for a few minutes with his friend Mr. George H. Frank and met several other friends while here.

The many little friends of little Miss Helen Farley will be very sorry to learn that she is quite ill at her home in East Second street.

UNION SERVICES IN COURT HOUSE YARD

First of Series of Out-door Sunday Night Services to be Held Next Sunday—Rev. Peters, Will Preach.

The first of a series of union outdoor services will be held Sunday at 7:30 p. m. on the court house lawn. A large platform has been built upon which all members of all the church choirs are expected to be for each service. "Victory Songs" the popular Redheaver song book used by many of our churches will be used in these services. Songs that everybody can sing will be used. It will be a popular service as well as a service of real help.

Rev. Peters, pastor of Third Street M. E. church, will preach the first sermon. Everybody invited and made welcome. Chairs will be provided for all. Every effort possible will be made to make people comfortable. Those who complain about it being too hot to go to church Sunday evening will have no chance to work that excuse any longer. We will have the comforts of a camp meeting right in the heart of our town.

GOOD NEWS FOR MAYSVILLE PEOPLE.

Arn Brethera just stated that they are determined that every man, woman and child must drink some of their fine Iced Tea, so have decided to reduce the price on their Orange Pekoe, fancy mixed, and Young Hyson Tea, 20 cents on the pound, making it retail at 20 cents a quarter pound instead of 25 cents a quarter pound, they better have plenty of tea if they are going to sell these high grade Teas at such low price.

FORMER LEWIS COUNTY DOCTOR ACCIDENTALLY SHOOTS SELF.

Word reaches us that Dr. H. H. Petry, formerly of Standiford, but lately of Colonel, W. Va., accidentally shot himself late Tuesday and died in a few minutes. He had carried a pistol in a holster for some years and was treating the injured foot of his little son, stooping over when in some innumerable manner the gun went off and the bullet severed the main artery in the right leg. This is indeed regrettable as Dr. Petry was the father of a large family of children, an excellent physician and a good man and neighbor. His friends here will sorrow at his untimely death.

ANDERSON CLEARED OF SERIOUS CHARGE.

Everett Anderson, colored, went clear in City Court Thursday afternoon on a charge of aiding the escape of a fugitive. Anderson proved that he was not aiding Edgar to escape but merely took him to the office of a physician for treatment following the escapade. On this evidence Judge Curran released Anderson.

NANNIE SOISTER, NOT ANNA FACING SERIOUS CHARGE.

Because of a similarity of names there has been some confusion in getting the name of the woman, grandmother of the infant whose body was found in a Lewis county well and who has been held for the charge. The woman held is Nannie Soister, wife of Lonnie Soister and not Anna Soister, wife of Thomas Soister.

JOHN W. YERKES

John W. Yerkes, who died at Danville Friday afternoon, was greatly beloved by all who were fortunate enough to enjoy an intimate acquaintance with him and equally respected by every person who knew him even casually.

Mr. Yerkes was a man of splendid natural endowments. These he had broadened by study, by a wide acquaintance with men and events and by unusual powers of observation and analysis.

Had Mr. Yerkes been more of a politician, in the best expression of that word, and less of an idealist, less of a strict conformist to certain inherent and temperamental theories of living and public service, he would have been far more conspicuous than he was in all the walks of life. By nature a diffident man, he never acquired, nor sought to become clever in, the art of making friends or admirers for practical purposes.

In 1900 Mr. Yerkes made a most noteworthy race for Governor. The nomination was tendered to him with no effort on his part to secure it, and notwithstanding the heat and bitterness of the period immediately following the unfortunate assassination of Senator Goebel, he polled upwards of 40,000 more votes than were ever before given to a Republican nominee for that office.

Subsequently President McKinley appointed Mr. Yerkes Commissioner of Internal Revenue. He at once took high rank among public men at Washington who were concerned with subjects relating to revenue and taxation. At the death of Mr. McKinley, Mr. Roosevelt requested him to remain in the office to which Mr. McKinley had called him. During the ensuing four years Mr. Yerkes was helpful as a dignified exponent of the best element of Republicanism in the Southern states and was regarded by Southern leaders as their ablest and most conspicuous representative at the seat of government. At the beginning of the second Roosevelt administration, some gentlemen of influence and standing in a number of the Southern states, aided by others not of the South, and absolutely without his knowledge sought to have Mr. Yerkes invited into the new cabinet. Except for an unfortunate division in the party in Kentucky, which was marked by considerable bitterness, these plans, it is believed, would have been successful. President Roosevelt insisted that Mr. Yerkes remain in the office of Commissioner of Internal Revenue and he rendered valuable assistance in the reshaping of important legislation affecting the public revenues.

Mr. Yerkes was a man of finest delightful personality. Equipped natively and by culture for success in any field, he was a conversationalist of rare qualities, and in the presence of those with whom he was upon terms of pleasant intimacy he was a companion of extraordinary interest and sweetness. He was fond of his home and of people, and he was a friend upon whom every reliance could steadfastly be placed.

The good deeds which Mr. Yerkes did in this life he did with that same lack of display which characterized him always. There was nothing in his public career or in his private life of which he had reason to be ashamed. He was honorable and upright in all of his dealings with men and his philosophy of life was based always and ever upon a remarkably just appreciation of the rights of others. There was no cant or hypocrisy about him. He was always what he was. Nothing more, nothing less.

The writer of these lines was for four years in Washington Mr. Yerkes' private secretary and for many years, he is proud to say, his intimate and trusted friends. Therefore, he knows whereof he speaks.—Harry Giovannoli in the Lexington Leader.

Mason county farmers appear to be in the humor of organizing. "Welt am Montag," or, in American terms, "The World on Monday," calls J. Pierpont Morgan the uncrowned kaiser of the earth. Considering the day of publication, the Berlin periodical must be a blue sheet.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle thinks America will adopt spiritism in the next ten years, but probably under the name of Psychic Christianity. This is the first pessimistic prophecy that we've heard in years.

Boston Transcript—Russia has an army of more than a million men, and apparently would like to have the United States feed and clothe it.

New York Letter

New York. — If a person wants to learn how to be joyous though jobless, he must find a way of being invited in some evening between midnight and 2 a.m. to the workshop of Leon Vart, in West Forty-sixth street. It is the intimate gathering place of all the Russian artists — dancers, actors, singers and all the rest — who are in Manhattan right now, either at work or as refugees. And it is, I should say at a venture, the center of the most spontaneous gaiety in this big town. The successful people of Chmire Souris, who came here as an experiment and find themselves the toast of the town, the singers from the Russian Opera Troupe, now singing at the Second Avenue Theater, some of the Russians from the Metropolitan — they all gather there to amuse themselves and each other, and with them — just as amusing, just as light of heart so far as one can see, are those who have fled the new regime in their country and are waiting and searching for some kind of work to earn their daily bread. Anyone who has acquired an idea that Russian art means gloom ought to be allowed an ear at Leon Vart's keyhole any night.

A competition for a piece of sculpture symbolizing "Co-operation" will shortly be announced by the Hotel Commonwealth, now under construction. The management and architects have stated that art, and American art, at that, is to direct the finishing and furnishing of the hotel interior, and that it is to be a radical departure from the gilt and gaudiness of the old established hotel plan of decoration. The figure or group denoting the spirit of co-operation, under which the hotel is built, will have the dominant place in the big ground floor lounge. The competition will be open to every sculptor in the country and a considerable prize will be awarded as well as the purchase of the work. The Commonwealth is co-operatively built

What has become of the youthful wild-oat sower? The no'er do well but gilded youth who wasted his father's money on the white lights and their various lures, while his name stood for a constant accumulation of wild escapades? He's vanished; that's all. And in his place has come — the middle-aged wild-outer. Whether the war made youth more serious; whether fathers of the decade have cut down on allowances; or whether it's just a part of the world's queer turn-over, I don't know. But certainly the man you see dining the show-girl in the restaurants today is not the youth who dined her ten years ago; it is the man over forty. The host at motor and roadhouse parties, where the pop is ice-cooled beer is heard still, regardless of Mr. Volstead, has reached those same years. Here is one explanation I had given me, which may or may not be true: the "flapper," the young girl in the youth's own crowd, is as "good fun" today as the show-girl, whereas she didn't use to be. Moreover it's this flapper who is just as happy eating at Child's or from a "hot-dog" wagon as she is in the Palace Royale. Therefore, the young fellow sticks to his own sister's friends and saves money, keeping out of escapes at the same time, while the "old duffer" continues to find in another life the excitement he can't get at home.

THE CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO RAILWAY COMPANY

OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

Richmond, Va., June 27th, 1922

To the Employees of The Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Company:

While no official notification has been given by this Company, the newspapers carry as an item of news the information that certain classes of our employees have been requested to vote on the question of whether or not they will accept certain rulings of the United States Railroad Labor Board.

Insofar as shop men are concerned, I understand that they are requested to vote upon the following questions:

1. Whether they will accord to the railroads the right to have piece-work done in their shops; also whether they will accord to the railroads the right to contract their shop plants to outsiders.

As this Company has not asked its employees to accept the piece-work basis and has not contracted with anybody to work its shops, there are no questions of that kind pending so far as it is concerned, and there is, consequently, no occasion for balloting on the question of striking on account of such grievances.

2. Whether they will abide by rules 6, 10, 12, 14, 16, 46 and 177, contained in Decision No. 222 and Addendum 6 thereto of the United States Railroad Labor Board.

3. Whether they will abide by United States Railroad Labor Board Decision No. 1036, providing for a reduction in their pay effective July 1st, 1922.

I understand that the other employees who are being asked to vote are also agreed at other decisions of the Labor Board affecting them.

The decisions of the United States Railroad Labor Board so questioned were rendered after due investigations and hearings, at which all were represented, and all the questions which could possibly be raised were at the time of these hearings fully discussed, and the conclusion of the Labor Board was reached after exhaustive consideration of the facts before the Board, and they also considered all other facts that seemed to be relevant. Detailed information as to the reasons for their conclusions is contained in the opinions of the Labor Board.

This railroad has accepted and put into effect in good faith every increase granted to its employees by the Labor Board. It has obeyed every rule of the Labor Board affecting it, and, consequently, enters the situation with absolutely clean hands. As above stated, it has done nothing to evade the Transportation Act as is claimed of some roads.

In this state of affairs it will be observed that the employees are asked to consider striking against the rulings of a constituted Governmental authority acting entirely within that authority. It is hard to understand how this railroad can do anything in this case except carry out the decision of the Labor Board. I feel sure that public opinion will not countenance a strike on such a basis and that disaster only can ensue if such a course is persisted in. I earnestly believe that this is also the mature judgment of a great number of cut men.

To all students of the conditions of the times it is thoroughly apparent that this situation is only a continuation of the inevitable adjustment which is going on in all wages which were increased as a result of war conditions. Shippers have been insistent upon reductions in rates, and the Interstate Commerce Commission has just put into effect a decrease in rates which must be met by some decrease in expenses. The railroads for the year ended December 31st, 1921, earned 3.31% on the value of their property as established by the Interstate Commerce Commission, and for the four months ended April 30th, 1922, which is the latest date for which we have statistics, they only earned 4.36% on such value. Surely this cannot be considered by anyone as an adequate interest return. Railroad employees know that in their own investments they rightfully demand a much higher rate of interest than this.

The Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Company desires to work on the very closest basis with its employees, realizing that such a state of affairs produces a much better result in every direction than can a contrary policy. It has therefore been my desire to bring about such a relationship between the employees and the Company that will produce the best results in the operation of the railroad, because the splendid feeling that cooperation and mutual esteem always create is bound to result in financial and other consequences of a splendid nature.

Many of our employees have been working for the railroad a great many years with the greatest harmony. I sincerely trust that they may work with the Company a great many more.

In the event our men take drastic action, it is of course incumbent upon the Management to operate the railroad in order that the public may be served.

W. J. HARAHAN,
President

WRIGHT GIRLS WINNER
FOR WINCHESTER TEAM.

Winchester, Ky., June 29. — "Rasty" Wright, pitching ace of the Winchester team, held the Lexington nine to three scattered hits today and the Dodgers defeated the Studebakers by the score of 3 to 1. Monholloway of Lexington was also in good form allowing only five hits, but two of these, bunched with a walk and two errors gave Winchester three runs and the game in the fourth inning. Score:

Innings ... 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 — R. H. E.
Lexington ... 0 0 0 0 1 0 0 0 0 — 1 3 2
Winchester ... 0 0 0 3 0 0 0 x — 3 5 1
Batteries — Monholloway and Kelly; Wright and Frazer.

Cynthiana Wins. Cynthiana, Ky., June 29. — Cynthiana played errorless ball behind the good pitching of Rorer and Rehkemp this afternoon and the ideal team shut out the Paris team 3 to 0. A double play in which two men were put out on the plate after three Paris batters had singled in succession in the sixth inning was the feature of the game. Score:

Innings ... 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 — R. H. E.
Paris 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 — 0 8 4
Cynthiana ... 0 0 0 1 2 0 0 x — 3 7 0
Batteries — Willis and Dugan; Rorer, Rehkemp and Willie McEvain.

AMERICAN WOMEN ARE CARELESS.

Women are too apt to overestimate their strength and overtax it. When feeling well they take unnecessary chances, which in the long run cause much pain and trouble. Wet feet, exposure to cold, lifting heavy burdens and overwork will often develop troubles which cause no end of suffering. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the unfailing remedy in such cases. Thousands of American women will testify to this fact who have regained health and strength by its use. If you are suffering it will pay you to give it a fair trial.

John Hurst Adams, formerly principal of the Minerva High School, now managing editor of the Franklin Evening Star, Franklin, Ind., passed through Maysville Friday morning en route to Minerva to spend a part of his vacation with friends.
